

SUMMIT Nina Campbell

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

INTRODUCING THE NINA CAMPBELL COLLECTION FOR SUMMIT

Summit Furniture expands its fabric offerings with spring 2018 introductions
by celebrated British designer Nina Campbell

(L-R) Nina Campbell and Jane Sieberts with Campbell's new Shanghai Labyrinth fabric, shown in Travertine on Summit's Krios lounge chair.

Monterey, Calif., November 15, 2017 — Summit Furniture, the leading maker of premium furniture for outdoor living, has teamed up with British interior designer Nina Campbell to add new offerings to its recently launched Summit Endurance Fabrics line of high-performance textiles. The namesake collection for Summit — Campbell's first foray into indoor-outdoor fabrics — includes five new patterns inspired by nature, fashion and iconic destinations around the globe. Infused with the London-based designer's signature blend of wit and sophistication, the Nina Campbell Collection for Summit also introduces five new colorways evocative of organic elements such as minerals and gemstones.

"I've always wanted to create an outdoor fabric collection and have long admired Summit's superb design and craftsmanship, so the collaboration feels like a perfect match," says Campbell. "The textures of these fabrics are exceptionally beautiful. Each pattern has its own luxurious feel that fits the design and also complements Summit's furniture. All are 100% woven, which makes them truly durable as well as stylish."

Summit owner and president Jane Sieberts says a visit to Campbell's London design studio last spring cemented the partnership. "It was such a fun meeting, I knew immediately we were on the same page," she notes. "I love that certain 'pop' and energy of Nina's aesthetic and am thrilled to see it translated into these fabrics. This addition to the collection is a significant milestone for us as we continue to grow our textile program in tandem with our furniture lines.”

Available exclusively through Summit Furniture, the Nina Campbell Collection for Summit will debut at Design Centre Chelsea Harbour in London during London Design Week 2018 and will be ready to ship in March of 2018.

The collection encapsulates Campbell’s design ethos when it comes to living outdoors: “I don’t want to fight with nature,” she says. “What I want in a garden is to see the garden, or the rolling waves when I’m at sea. I like outdoor furniture that doesn’t shout at you, so I didn’t want anything too busy.”

Left: (L-R) Havana Leaf in Lapis; Madagascar Stripe in Lapis, Shanghai Labyrinth in Travertine; London Crosshatch in Peridot; Right: Summit’s Smoothie sectional shown in London Crosshatch in Peridot; pillows shown in Shanghai Labyrinth in Peridot.

Available in a fresh and sophisticated palette that includes Coral, Lapis, Peridot, Travertine, and Turquoise, all fabrics in the collection are made of 100% solution-dyed acrylic. The patterns are:

- Shanghai Labyrinth – This contemporary riff on a classic trellis motif in basketweave construction evolved from Campbell’s interest in antique, Chinese hand-carved screens.
- London Crosshatch – A handsome cinema weave that mimics a painted wall-treatment Campbell often uses in her interior projects, but enlarged and “crisped up,” she says, with textural relief.
- Bahama Basket – Sieberts’s favorite in the collection (“It’s a classic,” she says), this modern take on a traditional basket motif features sturdy plain weave construction and is reversible.
- Havana Leaf – Recalling dense foliage and exotic plants, this stylized botanical pattern has a lovely, luxurious texture due to the plain weave technique.
- Madagascar Stripe – Based on a favorite Panama-style hat Campbell found while traveling, this sartorial-inspired, variegated basketweave balances neutral tones and accent color for ultimate versatility.

About Nina Campbell

Among the world's most influential interior designers, Nina Campbell started her career at age 19 as an assistant to John Fowler of Sybil Colefax & John Fowler Company, and has since built an international brand known for its timeless design sensibility. She is the creative force behind numerous luxury hotels (Cullen House in Banffshire, Scotland; Savoy Hotel lobby, with David Linley; Hotel Parc Victor Hugo in Paris), notable restaurants (Outlaw's Restaurant in London), commercial projects (Greystone Mansion, Los Angeles; Royal Albert Hall's Clive Room, London), and countless residential projects across the globe. In 1990, Campbell launched the first of what was to become her annual fabric, wallpaper and trimming collections, internationally distributed by Osborne & Little. Highlights from her long list of awards include an Honorary Doctorate from the University of Middlesex 2001, the Royal Oak Timeless Design Award 2003 and Residential Designer of the Year 2010 from IDFX Magazine.

About Summit Endurance Fabrics

Both luxurious and practical, Summit Endurance Fabrics bring new dimension to Summit's furniture collection with custom textiles ranging from vivid patterns to textured neutrals. Modernist-inspired motifs, classic stripes and timeless solids are rendered in 100% solution-dyed acrylic, and come in a striking palette of hues, including Sundeck Blue, Nice White and Sunset. All fabrics are fade-proof and microbe resistant for lasting style. Also available by the yard and shipped worldwide.

About Summit Furniture, Inc.

Established in 1979, Summit Furniture is internationally recognized as a leading manufacturer of heritage outdoor furniture made in the finest sustainable teak and marine-quality construction for both residential and contract environments. Summit collaborates with distinguished American and European designers such as David Linley, Alwy Visschedyk and John Munford, making it the choice for elegant hotels, restaurants, private clubs and fine residences around the globe. Summit is also the preferred furniture of super-yacht owners and designers of luxury cruise ships. The company is headquartered in Monterey, California, with showrooms in London, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Monaco. Learn more about Summit's entire collection of furniture, fabrics and accessories online at summitfurniture.com.

Media contact for more information and high-res images:

Hilary Gustafsson, Marketing Director, Summit Furniture
hilary@summitfurniture.com, 917.704.4544

###